LABOR COUNCIL SEEKS ORDINANCE

Send Petition to Common Council to Pass the Rybold Street Car Ordinance

ARGUE FOR SAFETY OF PUBLIC

Say Cars Should Not Be Handled by Inexperienced Motormen and Conductors

A vigorous protest against the killing of the Rybold "strike breaker" ordinance which provides that the street car company shall not employ men of less than twenty days' experience in handling cars will be presented at the meeting of the common council tomorrow night by the trades and labor council. The ordinance was referred to the committees on railroads and ordinance and at the last meeting of these committees it was decided to submit an unfavorable report at the council meeting.

The trades and labor council petition sets forth that the ordinance was prepared as a safeguard to the traveling public and urges that it be given the earnest consideration of the aldermen before final action is taken.

A communication was also addressed to Mayor Ori Sorensen expressing the desire of the trades and labor council that he use his influence toward the passage of the ordinance.

The petition which will be presented to the council tomorrow night is given in full herewith:

"To the Honorable, t he Mayor and Common Council of the City of La Crosse, Wisconsin.

"Gentlemen: We understand from the newspapers that there is to be an adverse report by the committee to whom was referred the proposed ordinance introduced by Alderman Rybold, regulating the operation of street cars.

"The working people represent the majority of traveling public and the greater portion of the people who particularly at the congested hours of travel are on the streets of this city. Representing the working people, we take this opportunity to urge upon you the necessity of passing this ordinance. The street railway company, through its representatives, was heard by this committee while the traveling public has not appeared. We feel that the committee to whom the ordinance was referred may not be fully cognizant of the true condition and we do not wish the members of the common council generally to vote upon the proposition without having at least a portion of the other side of the case before them.

Twenty Days' Experience

"The ordinance in section one provides that it shall be unlawful for any street railway company operating in this city to permit its cars to be operated by any motorman who shall have had less than twenty days' experience under the direct tutelage and instruction of an experienced employee or instructor which instructor shall have had at least a year's experience.

"Section two provides that it shall be unlawful for any motorman to operate cars in the city unless he shall have had at least fifteen days' experience in this city under the direct tutelage of some experienced motorman.

"We understand that the time was originally intended to be made the same in both sections and we believe that if changed, it should be made twenty days in both cases.

"This ordinance is drawn to protect the public, not only those riding on the cars, but also to protect the men, women and children who are compelled to cross street car tracks.

"That the street railway company itself thinks that experience is necessary is shown by the fact that at the present time the employes are given nineteen cents an hour the first six months of employment, twenty-one cents the second six months, and it is not until the end of the first year that they are given the maximum wage of twenty-three cents an hour. And right now, if we are rightly informed, the company is attempting to lengthen to four or five years the time when the men shall receive a maximum wage.

Experience Necessary

"Further on this proposition we cite your honorable body to the testimony of Mr. B. E. Edwards, until recently president of the company. Mr. Edwards has had as much experience in handling street car employes as any other man in the city. At a public hearing before an arbitration committee held in this city was asked:

"'Do you think that six months is long enough for a man to become competent to handle a car?'

His answer, under oath, was, 'You might get a man some times who would be competent, but not often.'

"The superintendent of the line was asked:

"'Are men who have only been in the service two or three weeks fully competent street car men?'

"His answer, also under oath, was, 'We let them take out a car but they are not experienced enough. No man can go on a line for ten days, and handle his work with judgment as well as an older man. He doesn't

AMERICAN'S YACHT IS SEIZED IN WAKAYAMA HARBOR BY THE JAPS

TOKIO, June 12.—Neither the Japanese foreign office nor the marine department today had been informed of the seizing in Wakayama harbor of American yacht Columbia, owned by J. Harvey Ladew, of New York. The failure of the harbor authorities to notify the governments adds to the mystery of the affair.

Wakayama is a closed port, because of its proximity to Japanese fortifications and the law provides that any vessel putting into the harbor shall be liable to confiscation and its owner fined.

It is believed by Americans here that the seizure of the Ladew yacht was a mere formality and without any international significance. Ladew, who was cruising between Nagasaki and Yokohama with his wife, sons, daughter and Miss Hilda Holmes of New York, put into Wakayama for repairs, supposedly ignorant of the harbor law.

LOBBYISTS "USE" SENATE INQUIRY

Probe to Shut Down on Giving Advertising to Witnesses on the Stand

TO BAR LONG TARIFF TALKS

Sugar Agitators Achieve Publicity Formerly Impossible for Them to Get

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Convinced that they are being "used" by "legislative experts" who are enabled to get their tariff views into the record while supposedly under examination for their lobbying activity, the senatorial investigation committee determined today to shut down on long winded tariff discussions by those whom it calls to testify.

The sugar agitators already examined have achieved the publicity that they have heretofore found impossible to obtain even though widespread newspaper advertising. The testimony of the lobby hearing has already been spread over 2,000 printed pages and it is not yet half done. Moreover, at least fifty per cent of the testimony has been the form of tariff arguments.

Louisiana sugar planters were expected again to take the center of the stage at today's hearing. The democratic committeeman were determined to hold down on these witnesses and prevent any testimony as to prevent any testimony as to pre-election pledges for sugar.

M'ADOO DENIES REPORT.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Stock market conditions did not prompt him to tell national banks of the country that he was prepared to issue $500,000,000 of emergency currency, Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo stated today. He said he issued his statement reciting the preparedness of the treasury to distribute the emergency currency without consulting President Wilso.n

"For some time inquiries have been received from many national banks asking if the department was prepared to issue such currency, and I merely made a public answer to these inquiries," McAdoo explained today.

MARKET RECOVERS FROM BIG SLUMP

Has Best Morning Session in Weeks Following Earlier Heaviness

NEW YORK, June 12.—Following the gloomy opening of Tuesday and the slump at the close yesterday, the stock market today had one of the best morning sessions in three weeks. Some of the leading issues advanced as much as seven points, others went up three points before the bears attempted a raid on the theory that the market had weakened itself by the upward movement.

The rise was temporarily checked in this movement and when New Haven was put under pressure it sold down to 99½, a new low record. The Reid-Moore issues were particularly strong, however. Lehigh Valley touched 146, up ¾, and American Can advanced to 24⅝, a rise of 3⅛.

ILLINOIS WOMEN GIVEN THE BALLOT

Suffrage Bill Passes 83 to 58 After Dramatic Fight on the Floor

GOVERNOR PLEDGED TO SIGN IT

State Is First East of the Mississippi to Grant Vote to the Women

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 12.—Woman's suffrage triumphed in the house of representatives yesterday afternoon when the suffrage bill was passed. The bill will go to Governor Dunne, who is pledged to sign it. Illinois will take its place as the first state east of the Mississippi river to give voting power to women.

Under the operation of this act women in Illinois will be allowed to vote for all officers created by statute including presidential electors and United States senators, and on all propositions submitted to the people.

The bill is as broad as it is possible to make it without a constitutional amendment.

The vote was 83 to 58. The measure was adopted in one of the most dramatic hours ever witnessed in the Illinois legislature. The interests which have fought equal suffrage followed the bill to the floor of the house. The measure hung in the balance until after Speaker McKinley had cast what was in fact the deciding vote, and the call of the absentees began.

VIENNA, June 12.—A great demonstration occurred today when the American delegates attending the two-day international woman suffrage conference here told the assembly that Illinois had granted women the ballot. The announcement was greeted with applause and several of the American women were called upon for speeches.

DYING OFFICER KILLS ASSAILANT

Penitentiary Official Shot in Attempt to Arrest Escaped Convict

CANON CITY, Col., June 12.—In a desperate encounter with an escaped convict, Conley Baldwin, near Laveta, 70 miles from here, at daylight today, John B. Russell, night captain at the Colorado penitentiary here, was shot to death. Before he dropped dead from his wound, Russell succeeded in drawing his own revolver and shooting Baldwin three times. The convict will probably die.

Baldwin escaped from the penitentiary last November and has been at large ever since. Last night the prison authorities located him near Laveta, in a small cabin, and Captain Russell was sent to arrest him. Accompanied by the marshal of Laveta and his deputy, Russell went to Baldwin's cabin at daybreak today. Baldwin's wife tried to bar the door when Russel forced it open and demanded that Baldwin surrender. Baldwin fired one shot, the bullet striking Russell in the left shoulder and ranging downward into the heart.

Russell threw his left arm about a companion, supporting himself while he fired three times, inflicting mortal wounds on Baldwin. He then staggered outside the cabin and fell dead. Russell had been married only a month.

Copies of the resolution were ordered sent to Senators Cummins, Kenyon and Keaton.

CAN'T FIND HOME MADE GOODS HERE

Frank E. Smith Deals Vigorously with What He Calls "La Crosse's Greatest Blunder"

HE URGES COMMUNITY ACTION

Tells of Search for La Crosse Made Shirt in the Stores and Discusses Sale of Home Shoes

"I want to tell you the story of a shirt," said Frank E. Smith, president of the Smith Mfg. Co., this morning.

Mr. Smith had the shirt on. It was a substantial and well made blue shirt of the sort men wear in factories and other occupations where service is the essential thing.

"Yesterday I started out to buy a shirt of this kind,' said Mr. Smith. "I visited nearly every retail store that handles shirts, but although we have two factories here making the best quality of these shirts, I was unable to find one on sale. I then went to one of the factories and bought this one. I compared it with other shirts of the same grade and found that in material and workmanship it equalled any and excelled most of those on sale. The manufacturer said one store was handling the shirts. I shall not name the store, even though not to do so is unjust to the store keeper. He is enough of a patriot, I take it, to agree with me that if we are to get results from arguing this question, we must avoid personalities."

About Our Shoes

"The same thing is true of shoes. Our shoe factory does not specialize upon the most finished product, but I can refer you to many men who have used them right along who will tell you that they make work shoes with which few factories can compete for service and comfort. There are in La Crosse from 3,500 to 4,000 men who wear two classes of shoes, one for work and one for special purposes. I venture to say there are not two hundred of these men wearing La Crosse made shoes of either kind. Are these men at fault? No. If the shoes were on sale in the retail stores and a little community spirit put into pushing them, they would wear them.

"It is not my purpose to attempt to judge the differences existing between La Crosse manufacturers and retailers further than to say that, on the face of it, they are trivial, and with a little common sense and forbearance and co-operation could be adjusted.

Why Men Are Cautious

"The month hardly passes in which members of our firm, like other business men, are not approached with a request that they take stock in some projected local factory. But men here with capital are cautious about such investments, and no wonder, for they know that if they go in their investment, which hires men here and disburses a big payroll, will get no support at home. How immensely easier it would be to get money for factories here if everyone in La Crosse pushed the goods? How much nearer we would already be to that 50,000 if we all were asking for and trying to sell La Crosse made goods?

"I understand a committee of board of trade members, part of them selected from the Retail Merchants association and part from the Manufacturers and Jobbers club, has been appointed to try and work out a solution of this problem. I want that committee to make a canvass of the retail stores, to begin with, so that they may understand how serious is the task they have undertaken. Once they realize this, they will no doubt see the importance of going at it in a broad way and doing the months of work necessary to wake this town up to its one great civic error.

We Must All Work

"Let us all help. How would it do to start an "I Buy La Crosse MADE Goods Club," and canvass the situation so hard that its roll of membership would look like the city directory. If that were done we'd have a good start for that 50,000 population.

MOB RIOTS IN LISBON

SHOOT UP THEATER DURING BENEFIT PERFORMANCE FOR POLITICAL PRISONERS

LISBON, June 12.—Another bomb was hurled from an upper story window at a municipal parade today, wounding many. It was reported that several were killed but this could not be verified. News dispatches are rigidly censored.

LONDON, June 12.—Uncensored dispatches from Lisbon today told of the attack of a mob in a theater in the Portuguese capital last night during a benefit performance to aid political prisoners. Several diplomats and other distinguished men and women were in the boxes, when a fusillade of revolver shots rang out and the audience was thrown into confusion.

RICH PLACER STRIKE REPORTED IN ALASKA STARTS A GOLD RUSH

DAWSON, Yukon Ty., June 12.—A rich placer strike is reported on the Alaska side of the Shushana river, tributary to the headwaters of the Tanama, fifteen miles across the divide from Copper camp at the head of the White river. Two men are said to have shoveled in $900 in a few days. Billy James and his partner Nelson are reported to have made the strike. James is now at the strike. Nelson visited here quietly a few days ago, and got away for a return trip.

A large party left here on the steamer Vidette for the mouth of the White river to pole up the divide or take the trail. The poling takes three weeks and the trail half that time. Some are talking of crossing the country through the hills direct from Dawson.

MOTHER KILLS HER BABIES AND SELF

Feared She Was Going Insane and Would Be Separated from Family

WIFE OF FOND DU LAC FARMER

Woman Seemed Unequally Cheerful the Afternoon Before the Tragedy

FOND DU LAC, Wis., June 12.—Following the decision by the district attorney that an inquest is unnecessary, Nicholas Schneider, a prosperous farmer near here, today sadly prepared for burial of his wife and his three babies, slain by their mother because she feared she was going insane.

Using a razor, Mrs. Mary Schneider almost severed from their bodies the heads of her three babies and then cut her own throat. The tragedy occurred late Wednesday afternoon.

The dead: Mrs. Mary Schneider, the mother; John Schneider, five years old; Norbert Schneider, three; Florence Schneider, two. Mrs. Schneider had been ill for several weeks and several times expressed the fear that she would become insane and be separated from her family. Yesterday afternoon when Mr. Schneider left the house to work in the fields, she seemed unusually cheerful. The same state of mind was noted by her sister-in-law, who called on her in the afternoon.

The sister-in-law, Miss Ida Schneider, stepped out of the house a few minutes and when she returned the tragedy had been enacted. Mrs. Schneider was still breathing, but unconscious and all the tots were dead. Miss Schneider rang the alarm bell, calling her brother from the field. When he discovered the bodies he was prostrated.

SENATE DEMOCRATS APPROVE TARIFF

Finance Committee O. K.'s Free Sugar and Wool Provisions of Underwood Bill

These were the only changes in the latter schedule as it passed the house.

Six Americans Killed when Gen. Pershing Takes the Bagsag Intrenchments

SULTAN CLAIMED TO RULE U. S.

Mohammedan Prince Construed Gifts from Uncle Sam as Tribute

MANILA, June 12.—The expectel battle between Brigadier General Perishing's men and the rebellious Moros under the sultan of Jolo occurred today at Bagsag and six Americans were killed. Twelve more were wounded. The Moro loss was not reported.

The Americans set out yesterday and took the rebel intrenchments early today. The Moros fought with stubbornness of despair and fairly threw themselves upon bayonets and guns of the troops.

The sultan of Jolo, a Mohammedan, refused to recognize the authority of the United States. He claimed not only the rulership of the Philippines, but dominion over the whole United States. The government some time ago sent the Moro ruler a few presents and he evidently construed them as tributes.

GET POOLROOM SHARKS.

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., June June 12.—In the arrest today of two men who gave their names as H. R. Stanley of Golden, Col., and J. J. Borgas, of St. Louis, county authorities allege that they have uncovered an attempt to put over one of the biggest poolroom swindles ever operated in the state of Michigan.

When sheriff's officers raided the hotel rooms occupied by the two men they found, they declare, nearly $100,000 in counterfeit money and $3,000 in good coin. There was also a large number of "phoney" checks. All other paraphernalia needed to operate a poolroom, including charts, telegraph instruments and blackboards, were confiscated.

BOMB LAID TO WOMEN

LONDON, June 12.—Militant suffragettes were blamed for a bomb that terrorized Runcorn, fifteen miles from Liverpool, today. Babler turned and fled toward the woods with De Rosie in pursuit. Babler is still missing, but it is not believed he was shot.

De Rosie then went home, said good bye to his mother and shot himself in the back yard of his home.

ASSEMBLY PASSES WATER PLANT BILL

Creation of Commission to Operate La Crosse Water Plant Now Up to the Council

MAYOR SORENSEN FAVORS PLAN

Says Million Dollar Utility Should Be Under the Management of Experts

MADISON, Wis., June 12.—(Special.)—The assembly Wednesday night passed senate bill number 539, which permits the La Crosse common council, if it so decides by a majority vote, to create a commission to direct the operation of its water system. While the measure, which was introduced by Senator Otto Bosshard, met strenuous opposition from C. L. Hood on Tuesday, the vote by which it passed was unanimous. That there is a movement on in La Crosse to take the management of this important part of the city's business from the hands of the board of public works is indicated by the fact that the bill was introduced at the request of several La Crosse people. Placing the water system on a firm business basis is the hope of those back of the new bill.

Sorensen Favors Plan

That the commission plan of operating the new La Crosse water plant would mean a great saving to the city was the statement of Mayor Ori Sorensen in an interview yesterday.

"When the new pumping station and reservoirs are completed," said Mayor Sorensen, "the city will have invested more than a million dollars in its water plant. That of course includes the watermains and street connections already installed.

"If this million dollars was invested in a private business the management would be intrusted only to high caliber men—men that were experts in their line. The management would not be chosen because of its political or any other affiliations. It would be placed in charge because the stockholders know their property would be properly managed.

Commission of Five

"The city can no better afford to place the management of this big utility in the hands of other than experts than the private company. The law provides that a commission of five business men be appointed in the same manner the police and fire commission take office. They serve without pay and have nothing but the interest of the city to serve. The management of a plant of this size is outside the experience of the board of public works.

"The commission plan would remove the water plant management from politics forever. The commission would direct the general policy aod place the active management in the hands of competent engineers. I have little doubt that this plan will be adopted by the common council."

Home Treatment for Sallow, Wrinkled Skin

A. C. F. asks: "What should I do for my sallow complexion, and how can I get rid of my wrinkles?"

Sallowness is best removed by removing the skin itself. This is effectually accomplished by the use of ordinary mercolized wax, which causes the offensive outer skin gradually to peel off, in fine particles scarcely noticeable to the naked eye. Within a week or so you will have an enviable complexion, the new skin exhibiting a healthful, youthful tint incomparable with artificial coloring. Get an ounce of this wax at your drugstore, apply at night like cold cream, only don't rub it in. Wash it off in the morning with warm water.

For your wrinkles try a solution of powdered saxolite, one ounce, dissolved in a half pint witch hazel. Bathe your face in this every morning for awhile. The result will surprise you.—Beauty's Mirror.

NORMAL FETE DAY AT MYRICK PARK

Annual Exercises to Be Participated in by Large Number of Students

MISS ETHEL DICKEE IS MAY QUEEN

Classic Dances in Costume to Be Staged on the Shaded Green Terrace

The annual fete day exercises of the normal school will be held at Myrick park tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock under the direction of the department of physical education of which Miss Laura Eustis is director. The rehearsal at the park yesterday predicts one of the prettiest out of door programs which the school has yet attempted and with the beautiful staging of the green terrace and shade trees no better setting could be desired. The costumes will be pretty and the flower effects will add to the general splendor of the occasion.

Miss Ethel Dickee of the senior class was chosen by vote of the students to be May Queen and Harriet Tubbesing will hold the same honor among the grade children. Ninety-six young women will take part in the Maypole dance.

50 Actors Required

The "Pipes of Pan" requires fifty actors as well as a large chorus of dancers from the grades. Miss Marie Novak will take the part of the God Pan.

The seventh and eighth grades will dance a Peasant dance with Jean Rolfe accompanying on the cornet. A goose drill by model school children will be a pleasing novelty with Gunvar Skaar playing the part of the Goose Girl. A garland dance by normal students and the singing of "Welcome, Sweet Springtime" to the tune of Rubenstein's "Melody in F," are other features of the exercises. A milkmaid and plowman and shepherd's dance will be put on by the grade children.

The program will begin promptly at 5 o'clock, the entire student body of the normal school marching over to the park in column. The normal school band will play throughout the program and from 7 to 8 o'clock will give a special concert.

The idea of the fete day exercises is to typify the spirit of spring and Miss Ethel Dickee as May queen will symbolize the glory of work. Her insignia will be handed to Harriet Tubbesing to carry on the work.

The June meeting of the La Crosse Science club was held last night at the normal school at which a program of much interest was presented. Dr. Colleran, who has recently inspected the Panama canal, gave an intensely vivid description of the work on the big ditch and brought to the minds of the auditors an idea of the immensity of the enterprise such as no magazine artice could convey.

Longbrake Speaks

Rev. George Longbrake of the Universalist church spoke on the work which science has done for mankind in the realm of pure thought.

No more meetings will be held until next fall and plans are being laid for a most successful series of meetings next year.

THE TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

MRS. DREW

By JANE OSBORN

Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Marjory Wood lay in the swaying hammock looking up into the green branches above her and wondering where the robin that was flitting about had built her nest. Part of the time she was wondering about the robin; the rest of the time she was speculating about her own state of mind.

She was quite content to lie there in the hammock and look idly up at the green branches. That worried Marjory. Usually she was keenly interested in everything about her, anxious to be a part of the life around her. But since she had come to visit her aunt, Mrs. Emmons, she had been strangely listless.

Marjory knew the reason well enough. She had been under a strain all winter, and now she had simply given up. Ever since she had left the steamer, seven or eight months ago, and had lost sight of the face of one Robert Stevens on the pier as he patiently took his place under the big "S" where the customs men examined baggage, while she had made her way deliberately to the "W," Marjory had lived in a constant state of expectation. Every time she got into a street car, every time she went into a theater, every time she turned a corner or went to a tea or looked out of a window, Marjory had been expecting to see his face again, just as it looked when it last blurred from her sight—cold, stern and cross.

Just before the steamer landed, while it was steaming calmly up the bay, Robert had asked Marjory to marry him, and Marjory, simply for the joy of being asked again, had laughed, rushed to the other side of the deck to look at the Statute of Liberty and then made her way to a lonely and secluded corner of the stern of the boat and waited. She had waited until the ship bumped into her berth and then had ignominiously gone in search of Robert. But he was not to be found. And when she passed him on the pier a few moments later he had coldly, distantly raised his hat and let her pass.

Well, she argued with herself, if he had really cared he would have found her somewhere.

The robin chirped and she looked nonchalant about for his nest again. Anyway, she was having a delightful, melancholy time here with her aunt, she assured herself, thinking it all over. She would like to lie there always wondering about the robin and thinking about that stern, hurt face.

"Marjory! Oh, Marjory!" came her aunt's animated voice, and a moment later Mrs. Emmons bustled across the lawn. "Marjory, what do you suppose I have done? You know little Jane Jones, who lives down the street? Well, her mother has one of her headaches, and Jane promised an old friend to motor down with him this afternoon to the Hale-Thompson foolball game at Hale college, and her mother can't chaperon her, and she asked me, and I can't because my club meets and I have to read a paper, and Mrs. Grinham can't because her baby has whooping cough, and Jane can't find any one, and so I told her you'd go, and we'd call you Mrs. Drew. Do you mind much, dear?"

Mrs. Emmons paused, out of breath. Marjory got laughingly to her feet, her old love of fun coming back to her face.

"I think it will be a great lark," she declared.

She came down twenty minutes later, wrapped in veil and linen duster, as the automobile drew up.

"Here's your ring," said her aunt, giving her a gold band, and Marjoriy slipped it, laughingly, on next to a ruby, which she always wore, because it had belonged to her mother. Then she ran out to the honking automobile.

"Oh, Mrs. Drew," Jane's young voice greeted her. "It was so good of you. Do you mind riding in front so that I can keep Mr. Stevens here with me? Mrs. Drew, Mr. Stevens—an old, old friend of mine."

Marjory got into the front seat beside the chauffeur as best she could. It was the same Robert Stevens—but not the same cold face that had haunted her for so many months. It was keen and animated and in a moment Marjory hated the laughing, vivacious girl at his side.

She pulled her veil back from her face and turned back to him.

'We have met before," she said smiling.

"Oh," said Robert, gazing at her, and as he gazed his face grew stern and hard, "Mrs. Drew? Yes, we have."

Marjory turned back in her seat. The rest of the ride was anything but pleasant for her. She heard Robert's deep, sympathetic voice and occasional hearty laugh and Jane's soft, rambling chatter.

"The hateful, deceitful little thing," said Marjory to herself.

When they reached the college campus, half an hour before the game was scheduled to begin, a young man came rushing to meet them. He greeted Jane and Robert with evident enthusiasm.

"Oh, Mrs. Drew," said Jane, "This is Billy Stevens—Bob's brother, you know. Mrs. Drew, Billy. She was awfully good and at the last minute consented to take mother's place and come down with us."

"I say, Mrs. Drew, that was good," said Billy Stevens, "for we would have been awfully disappointed, and you were a trump, too, Bob, to bring Jane down. Now, if you two don't mind, I am going to trot Jane around a little. We'll be back in fifteen minutes. Bob, it's cool and shady on the other side of Henley Hall."

Marjory watched the two go off together with consternation. Finally she pulled herself together.

"You go with Jane, too, Mr. Stevens," she said. "I can wait alone."

Robert Stevens did not heed what she said, but piloted her across the crowded campus to the cool, shady side of Henley Hall. It was deserted.

They sat down silently under the elm. Marjory was tired and hot and angry. She pulled off her gloves, and unfastened her coat and took it off and untied her veil and folded it precisely. She saw Robert looking at her left hand. With a quick motion she put it behind her.

"Well," she said.

"Yes," he said, "we might as well talk it out. It isn't honorable of me, I know—but out there on the ocean, you know what I thought, Mrs. Drew. And yet you were wearing his ring then."

Robert got up and paced back and forth nervously, angrily. Marjory had a sudden dimming vision of a crowded pier.

"But," she said, weakly, "this isn't his ring—it's my mother's—I have worn it ever since she died. And—"

'Don't be childish," said Robert, "there's the other ring."

"But that isn't his either," said Marjory with tears in her eyes. "that is, I mean, there isn't any he—don't you see? Oh, please understand me and comfort me."

Robert stopped short. Could it be that she was a widow and was thus, gayly dressed and boldly weeping, asking for his comfort? For a moment the cold look went from his face and one of pity and sympathy, albeit a little contemptuous, took its place. Marjorie ran to him and put her arm through his.

"Oh, don't you see," she said, slipping the band from her finger and putting it into his pocket, "I'm just pretending to be Mrs. Drew so that I could be chaperon because Jane's mother is ill? I'm Marjory, just Marjory. And I was so wretched because I thought you had forgotten me; and today I knew it was Jane, and I hated her—and knew more than ever how much I missed you. And—"

"But," said Robert, "that day we landed—why did you run away?"

"Well," said Majory judicially, "I suppose just because I thought you would come, too."

Daddy's Bedtime Story — Whiskers Brothers Go Picnicking In the Woods.

Mr. Wolf Started Over the Bridge.

"THERE," said daddy; "I had a perfectly beautiful time with my pipe and book, and now you are coming here to make me work."

"No, no, daddy, dear, only to have you tell us a story!" Jack and Evelyn protested.

"Well, that's work for daddy," he replied, "but I will have to get busy.

"Well, once on a time three goats lived together on the edge of the woods. Their names were Billie Whiskers, Johnny Whiskers and Jimmie Whiskers. Billie Whiskers was the biggest and strongest; next came Johnny, while Jimmie was the youngest and liveliest.

"One day Jimmie Whiskers said: 'Let's go into the woods and have a picnic today. Nice grass grows up there on the mountain side.' So they started out.

"At first they kept together very well, but after awhile Jimmie got tired of walking along quietly with his brothers and began to frisk ahead.

"Jimmie had a lovely race. At last he came to a narrow bridge over a stream. The bridge was only a log thrown over.

"Jimmie was halfway over when he heard a yawn, and, looking up on the other side of the bridge, he saw Mr. Wolf coming out of his cave and licking his chops as if about to feast.

"'Come right over!' Mr. Wolf growled, and there was no mistaking what Mr. Wolf meant to do when Jimmie got to the other side.

"'Oh, won't you just wait a minute! My brother is right behind me. He is bigger and fatter than I am. I'm sure you'd rather have him for breakfast, Mr. Wolf,' Jimmie pleaded and backed off the log as quickly as he could on the side of the stream away from Mr. Wolf.

"When Johnny Whiskers came up and started across the bridge Mr. Wolf was still waiting at the other end of the log, looking, oh, so hungry!

"But Johnny also began to back off the log, saying: 'I think its my big brother you want to see. He's coming right behind me.'

"And just then Billie Whiskers came up. The minute he saw Mr. Wolf at the other end of the bridge he stopped.

"'Won't you come over and let us get acquainted?' Billie Whiskers said to Mr. Wolf.

"Mr. Wolf started over, thinking that now he would have the three goats to eat, but just as he got to the middle of the log Billie Whiskers lowered his head and butted as hard as he could at the log bridge. It rolled over, and Mr. Wolf rolled off and went down, plop! into the water that ran below, and the water washed him away miles and miles and gave him a good bath, the best Mr. Wolf had ever had, and the three goats started home. They thought they had picnicked enough for one day."

ANOTHER BOGEY MAN IN FULL RETREAT

That the Wilson administration may authorize government construction of an Alaskan railroad is an interesting subject of current discussion. The idea was first proposed by Senator La Follette, who urged that the experience of the government in building and operating the Panama railroad is an ample and safe precedent. It was Senator La Follette's suggestion that when the canal is finished the government merely transfer that railroad to Alaska, and relay it there. Louis D. Brandeis, the famous Boston expert, endorsed the La Follette idea. The idea that the United States cannot do what other countries have so successfully is fast disappearing, despite the perfervid propaganda of the railroad interests.

CONCENTRATION THE CAUSE OF DISSATISFACTION

Contempt for property, say many commentators on current national symptoms, is growing in this country. They point to the development of industrial unionism with its radical program for democratizing industry as proof of the assertion.

The way to encourage respect for property is to pass property around. Radicals usually are propertyless men with very little prospect for acquiring any. High paper wages do not afford the chance for saving that it seems they should for the very simple reason that high prices take a heavy toll from what superficially appears like prosperity.

The desperate fighting note which sounds through so much of the workingman's discussion of present day problems is but the advance rumblings of what must become a mighty chorus of protest unless some means are found for the more equitable distribution of wealth. It is not so easy as it once was to tell the workingman that he is far better off than his grandfather ever dreamed of being. He will retort that the modern Midases are many times richer than the richest men of the richest countries only a generation or so ago.

The truth is that as men increase in intelligence their wants expand. All economic progress is based upon this expansion of wants. The savage's wants are easily satisfied; the wants of primitive peoples are correspondingly primitve; as individuals grow in culture they ask more and more of life. Every development of the brain or of artistic apprehension operates to change an indefinite longing for the higher things of life into an imperative demand. The more complex the man the more complex his wants and thus the more he has to have. What were luxuries become necessities. Books, pictures, music, travel—all the good things of life—appeal to him as natural heritages.

The task of the twentieth century is to recognize this demand of an intelligent people as logical and to devise ways to meet it. The "higher standard of living" tends temporarily to cause complications in the body politic but ultimately it means a higher standard of civilization. The way to make radicals conservative is to give them a stake that is worth conserving.

ABOUT WISCONSIN AND MINNESOTA

"The Minnesota legislative pilgrimage to Madison recalls the recent Philadelphia visit to the same shrine of expert modernity in government," says the Minneapolis Journal. "The Minnesotans went to learn about state control of public utilities, whereas the pilgrims from the City of Brotherly Love wanted information about municipal government. Each visitation, no doubt, was helpful to the visitors. But the thoughtful observer is struck with wonderment as to why and how Wisconsin has gone so far ahead of her sister commonwealths as to become a sort of Mecca to whose precincts others must resort for inspiration and improvement.

"Here are Minnesota and Wisconsin living and developing side by side, with very much the same sort of people as stuff for citizenship, with very much the same resources and possibilities, with very much the same sort of civil institutions at the outset. Yet Wisconsin has outstripped Minnesota in the development of her state government to such an extent that one of the visiting Minnesota solons complained of the necessity for constantly enacting here the various laws that Wisconsin has already invented and made practical. Wisconsin has a state government of experts, mostly trained in her university. Indeed, to some of these well-governed Badger folk it seems that they are living under a benevolent despotism.

"Minnesota's state government, on the other hand, is archaic, cumbersome, inefficient, wasteful. We do not seem to make much progress in improving it. Year after year we go on, submitting to one state machine after another, permitting our resources to be undeveloped or wasted, intent on our local affairs. We have little or no state feeling, such as permeates Wisconsin. We take little pride in Minnesota as a commonwealth—or at least not sufficient pride to lead us to bring about a rehabilitation of our government. In our legislature each member merely struggles to take home as large a chunk of 'pork' as possible."

Somewhere it has been written that an "onion a day keeps the doctor away." No doubt it would keep everybody else away if it is the same onion that decorated the breath of the young gentleman next to us at the picture show the other night.

Boston professor says the end of love making is near and that science will control all future matings. If this be cold truth, then the hammock manufacturer will probably order a fire sale and go into the ice business.

And here, just as the man had made up his mind that the top-notch prices had been reached in women's hats, comes a Paris milliner with a new creation that calls for fresh flowers every day.

The fellow who spends his afternoons on the back lot knocking up fly balls for the kid kicks like a steer when his wife asks him to go through the same motions beating a rug.

In case of war there are two of our possessions the Japs are welcome to capture—the Philippines and the Industrial Workers of the World.

Next to listening to an agent explain the vacuum cleaner the hardest thing in the listening line is being judge in a debating contest.

Dr. Cook is demanding that he be investigated, which is probably his last desperate bid for publicity.

A paper hanger never complains because a rush of business drives him to the wall.

The slash skirt, if banished, will come into play all right as a bathing suit.

Quips and Cranks and Wanton Wiles

Nothing Like It

These tiled and nickeled bathrooms
may all be mighty fine,
But when it comes to bathing, I don't pick them for mine.
These stylish Turkish outfits with rubbers and massage,
And zephyrs right from Hades, I always try to dodge.
The shower baths and the steam baths affected by the rich,
The mud baths by the invalids, with rheumatiz and sich,
There's no bath like we used to get by swimmin' in the crick.

The tater bugs grew frisky and got no Paris green;
The onions were not weeded while I was gettin' clean.
No one to turn the wringer or help
ma work the churn.
Oh, how those recollections of good old days do burn.
The woodpile was neglected, the old
gray mare unfed,
And father with his trunk strap sat waiting in the shed.
Massaging was in order and came almighty quick,
When we'd been out since morning
a-swimmin' in the crick.

The Wise Mother-in-Law

"Harry, love," exclaimed Mrs. Knowall to her husband on his return one evening from his office, "I have b-been d-dreafully insulted!"

"Insulted!" exclaimed "Harry love." "By whom?"

"B-by your mother," answered the young wife, bursting into tears.

"My mother, Flora? Nonsense! she is miles away on a visit to poor Tom."

Flora dried her tears.

"I'll tell you all about it, Harry, love," she said. "A letter came to you this morning addressed in your mother's handwriting, so, of course, I—I opened it."

"Of course," repeated Harry drily.

"It—it was written to you all the way through. Do you understand?"

"I understand. But where does the insult come in?"

"It—it came in the p-p-postscript, cried the wife bursting into fresh floods of briny. "It said: 'P-P-P. S.—D-dear Flora, d-don't fail to give this l-letter to Harry. I w-want him to h-have it.'"

The Best Obtainable

When the new girl from the employment agency had duly presented her references and the mistress had read them over, she regarded the girl with a stern eye.

"I am not satisfied with these references," she finally said.

"I'm not ayether, mum," said the frank Celt, "but they're the best I could git, mum."—Harper's Magazine.

Plenty on the Wing

"Yes," said the man just back from the west, "when I went out to Montana I did what nearly every other tenderfoot does—bought one of those broad brimmed felt hats like the ones stage cowboys wear, and put it on at the first opportunity.

"Mine wasn't the only one in town, but I felt conspicuous just the same. Somehow or other I hadn't acquired the knack of wearing it. One windy day—and, believe me, it can blow some in B— without half trying—I walked down the main street of the town holding onto my hat with one hand and my coat with the other. As I turned a corner the wind seemed to stop blowing, and I let go of the hat, when a sudden gust came, took it off my head and sent it rolling like a frightened hoop down the street.

"I started to give chase, when another hatless man—he was a sure-enough westerner, too—took me by the arm and said:

'Don't chase it, pardner; there'll be another one along in a minute!'"

An Oratorical "Hit"

There is a certain senator from the west who rarely makes a set speech to the august body of which he is a member. During the past session, however, a special occasion arose when he deemed it necessary to deliver quite a lengthy speech.

When he returned home that evening his wife, who had been aware of the senator's purpose to speak, asked:

"How was the speech received, Richard?"

"Why," said her husband, "they congratulated me very heartily. In fact, one senator came to me and told me that when I sat down he had said to himself it was the best thing I had ever done."

Solves a College Mystery

The reunion of the Princeton class of '88 marked the clearing up of a mystery that has bothered Dean Andy West of the graduate school for 25 years. In this class were twin brothers who played shortstop and second base on the ball team and halfbacks on the football team.

One of them went into Dean West's Terence class one day unprepared. His brother in the next seat had the translation pat. When Dean West had called on the knowing one and then turned to the blackboard the brothers changed places. The class was in an uproar when the wise brother recited for the second time and the class waited twenty-five years to tell Dean West the cause.

The Law of Chance

John D. Rockefeller called two little boys over to him. He said to one:

"Johnnie, if I give you a dollar what will you do with it?"

Johnnie said: "I'll put it in the bank and let it draw interest until it gets to be a hundred, then a thousand, and so on, until I get as much as you got."

"Very good," said John D. "Here's the dollar. Now, Tommy, what would you do with a dollar?"

Tommy said: "First I would change the dollar into two halves, the two halves into four quarters, the four quarters into ten dimes, the ten dimes into twenty nickels, the twenty nickels into a hundred pennies."

"Why should you do all this?" asked John D.

Tommy replied: "Well, somebody may make a mistake."

The Melting Of Molly

And it was well I did come to save Ruth Chester from a dancing death, for she is as light as a feather and sails on the air like thistledown. I felt sorry for Tom, for when he danced with me he could see her, and when he danced with her I pouted at him, even over Judge Wade's arm. I verily believe it was from being really rattled that he asked little Pet Buford to dance with him—by mistake as it were. After that if Pet breathed a single strain of music out of his arms I didn't see it. I knew that gone expression on his face and it made me feel so lonesome that I was more gracious to the judge than was exactly safe. He dances just as magnificently as he exists in life and it is a kind of ceremonial to do it with him. The boys all wore white flannels, and most of the men, but the judge was as formally dressed as he would have been in mid-winter, and I wondered if Alfred could be half as distinguished to look at. I suppose my eyes must have been telling on me about how grand I thought he was looking because he—well, I was rather relieved when one of the boys took me out of his arms for a good, long, swinging two-step.

And how I did enjoy it all, every single minute of it! My heart beat time to the music as if it would never tire of doing so. Miss Chester and I exchanged little laughs and scraps of conversation in between times and I fell deeper and deeper in love with her. Every pound I have melted and frozen and starved off me has brought me nearer to her and I just can't think about how I am going to hurt her in a few days now. I put the thought from me and so let myself swing out into thoughtlessness with one of the boys. And after that I really didn't know with whom I was dancing, I began to get so intoxicated with it all.

I never heard musicians play better or get more of the spirit of dance in their music than those did tonight. They had just given us the most lovely swinging things, one after another, when suddenly they all stopped and the leader drew his bow across his violin. Never in all my life have I ever heard anything like the call of that waltz from that gipsy's strings. It laughs you a signal and you felt yourself follow the first strain.

Just then somebody happened to take me from whomever I was with and I caught step and glided off the universe. The strongest arms that I felt that evening—or ever—held me and I didn't have to look up to see who it was. I wasn't clasped so very close to him or left to float by myself an inch; I was just a part of him like the arms themselves or the hand that mine molded into. And while that wonder-music teased and cajoled and mocked and rocked and sobbed and throbbed, I laid my cheek against his coat sleeve and gave myself away, I didn't care to whom.

Again that strange sense of some wonderful eternal good came to me and I found myself humming Billy's little "soul to keep" prayer against the doctor's sleeve to the tune of that magic waltz. I had never danced with him before, of course, but I felt as if I had been doing it always, and I melted in his arms as that baby had wilted to his mother out in the cabin a few hours earlier and I don't see how such happiness as that could stop. But with a soft entreating wail of the music came to an end and there the doctor was, smiling down into my face with his whimsical friendly smile that woke me up all over.

"Somebody has stolen a rose from the Carter garden and brought it to the dance," he said with a laugh that was for me alone.

"No," I flashed back, "a stringbean." And with that I danced off again with the judge, while the doctor disappeared through the door, and I heard the chuck of his car as it whirled away. He had just stopped in for a second to see the fun and God had given me that gipsy waltz with him, because He knew I needed something like that in my life to keep for always.

This has been a happy night, in which I betrothed myself to Alfred, though he doesn't know it yet. I am going to take it as a sign that life for us is going to be brilliant and gay and full of laughter and love.

I haven't had Billy in my arms today and I don't know how I shall ever get myself to sleep if I let myself think about it. His sleep-place on my breast aches. It is a comfort to think that the great big God understands the women folk that He makes, even if they don't understand themselves.

LEAF SIXTH
The Resurrection Razoo

Most parties are just bunches of selfish people who go off in the corners and have good times all by themselves, but in Hillsboro, Tennessee, it is not that way. Everybody that is not invited helps the hostess get ready and have nice things for the others, and sometimes I think they really have the best time of all.

This morning Aunt Bettie came up my front steps before breakfast with a large basketful of things for my dinner and I wondered what I would have collected to be served to those people by the time all my neighbors had made their prize contributions. It took Aunt Bettie and Judy a half-hour to unpack her things and set them in the refrigerator and on the pantry shelves. One was a plump fruit cake that had been keeping company in a tight box with a sponge soaked in sherry for ever since New Year's. It was ripe, or smelled so. It made me gnaw under my belt.

A little later Judy was exclaiming over a two year old ham that had been simmered in port and larded with egg dressing, when Mrs. Johnson came in and began to unpack her basket, which was mostly bottles of things she said she used to "stick" food. The ginger-colored barber got the run of them before the dinner was over and got badly stuck, so Judy says. That's what made him make the mistake.

I had planned to have a lot of strange food and had ordered some things up from a caterer in the city, but I telephoned the expressman not to deliver them until the next day, even if they did spoil. How could I use soft shelled crabs when Mrs. Wade had sent me word that she was going to bake some brook trout by a recipe of the judge's grandmother's? Mrs. Hampton Buford had let me know about two fat little summer turkeys she was going to stuff with corn-pone and green sage, and fillet mignon seemed foolish eating beside them. But when the little bit of a baby pig, roasted whole with an apple in its mouth, looking too frisky and innocent for worlds with his little baked tail curled up in the air, arrived from Mrs. Caruthers Cain, I went out into the garden and laughed at the idea of having spent money for lobsters, to be shipped alive and to be served broiled in their own shells.

When I got back in the kitchen things were well under way, everything smelling grand, and Aunt Bettie in full swing matching up my dinner guests.

Today's Beauty Recipes

By Mme. D'Mille.

"A good and inexpensive corrective treatment for faulty complexion, sallowness, pimples or blotches, is easily made at home by dissolving an original package of mayatone in a half-pint of witch hazel. Stop using powder and face creams and gently massage this mayatone lotion over the face, neck and forearms each morning. It will protect against sunburn, tan and freckles, and prevent the growth of hair. It makes the skin fresh and smooth, with the color of youth.

"The perfect shampoo is one that totally removes dandruff. When you can brush out dandruff scales the day after shampooing, your scalp has not been freed from the parasites that cause dull, faded, brittle and falling hair. Mother's Shampoo is the best dandruff remover I know. It keeps the hair fluffy and full of life and color.

"Feminine beauty and charm is often marred by superfluous hair. A sure, safe and speedy hair remover is made by mixing a little powdered delatone and water. Cover the wild hairs with this paste, leave on two minutes, wipe off, wash the skin and the hairs will be gone."

EKERN DEFENDS NAMING SYSTEM

MADISON, Wis., June 12.—(Special.)—The Hansen bill to revert to the elective method of naming the insurance commissioner called forth opposition arguments from Insurance Commissioner Ekern himself in the hearing before the senate committee on education and public welfare yesterday. His views in favor of the appointive system had previously been well known, but yesterday's hearing furnished his first public statement thereon since the recent removal episode.

In brief the commissioner favored the appointive law because otherwise the official is subject to the political turmoil incident to his election, and must "look after his political fences two years out of the four."

LEAGUE TO HURRY ROSE ST. VIADUCT

Will Urge City and Rail Commission to Take Speedy Action in the Matter

AFTER BLACK RIVER IMPROVEMENT

North Side Progressive League Asks Esch and Thompson to Close Chute

That the Rose street viaduct should be built, or other plans formulated for the street cars to cross either under or over the Milwaukee railroad tracks, was decided upon last night at the meeting of the North Side Progressive league. Despite the warm weather the meeting was well attended.

A motion was passed that the league communicate with the state railroad commission in regard to the matter of the crossing, to insist that the city appeal the matter, or go ahead with other plans. Members cited instances of narrow escapes during the past winter of street cars that slid down the icy slope to the railroad tracks, barely missing being struck by passenger trains.

Alderman Paul Mahoney read letters that have been prepared in regard to the deepening of the channel in Black river from La Crosse to Onalaska. These letters will be sent to Captain W. A. Thompson, and Congressman John J. Esch, with the request from the league that they do all in their power to further this plan.

For the past several years it has been hoped that the river could be deepened, and other improvements made, as at the season of the extreme low water, it is almost impossible for motor boats to get as far up the river as Onalaska. The letters that the league has written also take up the matter of the closing of Hammond chute, which drains off a great deal of water from Black river into the Mississippi.

WARN MEN AGAINST TAKING ANY CHANCE

Burlington Safety Committee Bulletin Tells Employes Not to Sacrifice Safety to Speed

"He took a chance and was killed," is the title of bulletin No. 40 issued by the "safety first" committee of the Burlington railroad. The bulletin cites the instance of a man who was killed a few weeks ago by careless switching, and several accidents that might have resulted fatally.

Among the bulletins is the report of six accidents that have occurred on the La Crosse division within the past thirty days from rusty nails that employes have left untouched, when they might have removed them.

One of the most important bulletins of the month put out by the committee is the caution not to go between moving cars for any purpose. It has been the habit of all railroad men to save time by cutting off cars while they were in motion. The bulletin cites cases of men within the past few weeks who have had their thumbs and hands smashed in the couplers.

DROUTH TO RAISE THE COST OF MILK

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 12.—The drouth in southern Illinois threatens to raise the price of milk here. So say delegates representing the Southern Illinois Milk Producers' association. With no rain for seventy days the pastures are drying up. This necessitates feeding fodder and grains, increasing the cost of production 33 per cent. If the dealers refuse to consider an increase of about 40 per cent in the price of milk, the dairymen say they will slaughter their cattle.

PASTORS CONDUCT SCHOOL OF METHODS

Rev. G. Verkuyl, superintendent of educational work of Wisconsin and Minnesota, assisted by Rev. Benjamin Thomas of Galesville, is conducting a school of methods at the Decorah Prairie school house. Text books are used in the afternoon while lectures are given in the evenings.

On Thursday afternoon examinations will be given and in the evening the certificates will be presented which closes the series of meetings. The topic for Thursday night is "The Three-Fold Boy and Then Some."

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to kindly thank relatives, friends and neighbors for their kind assistance and for floral offerings during our bereavement, the death of our dear husband and father.

MRS. JACOB HAHN and Family.

RUSHFORD MINN

Mesdames Sundby and Sheldahl have been recent Houston callers.

A jolly picnic party tramped up to the stone dam Monday and spent the day, those participatng being the Rowlee and Fenstermacher families and Ralph Hammond.

L. A. Gullickson returned to Lewiston Monday afternoon after spending Sunday with home folks.

Mr. and Mrs. Hargraves of Iowa are the guests of Mrs. Charles Drake, Mr. Hargraves' sister, and will also visit numerous other relatives and friends before returning to their home.

Messrs. Carl Foss and John Rhodes are enjoying a few days of camp life up by the stone dam.

Lovers of the beautiful will certainly appreciate a picture which is now to be seen at Kierland's drug store, in this city. Some days ago Mr. M. Johnson went up to the dam by the Rushford flour mill and secured an unusually clear kodak view of the dam and part of the surrounding scenery. He sent it up to a St. Paul firm which enlarged it to a size of about 14 by 24 inches, in sepia colors, making a most beautiful picture. We understand the work is not for sale.

A slight frost was experienced here Sunday night but so far we have heard no reports of any serious damage to crops or fruit. Strawberries of the earlied variety are ripening nicely and by another week it is expected that the home grown crop will be on the market in plentiful supplies.

Mrs. Gunder Anderson and daughter Jennie, also a granddaughter, Geneva Anderson, all of Ferry street, are guests of Ed Anderson and family of Choice. Mr. Anderson drove down Saturday and carried his guests home with him Sunday afternoon.

Word from Mr. and Mrs. Magnus Reishus, who left here a week ago Tuesday for their new home in Montana, state that they arrived at Jordan, their nearest railroad town, the following Thursday and had thoroughly enjoyed the trip, even the big Angora goat which the small boy of the family took along, seeming to stand the long journey well. Mr. Reishus has taken up a claim of 320 acres and speaks very enthusiastically of the country there. Their land is 70 miles from the nearest railroad and their nearest town is eight miles distant.

Children's day exercises will be held at the First Presbyterian church of Rushford next Sunday, June 15. Owing to uncontrollable circumstances the exercises could not be hed last Sunday, which was the regular day for them. The entire Sunday school is working earnestly and enthusiastically to make the services a success and the entire church will be decorated with ferns and flowers and numerous canary birds will make the air musical with their cheery voices. All come to the exercises.

A number of young people from Rushford and the surrounding country are organizing a choir for St. Joseph's church of this city and hope to soon have a dependable choir of about 15 or more voices.

The Willing Sewers of the Presbyterian Sunday school met Thursday with their earnest and faithful leader, Mrs. Fenstermacher, at her home on Mill street. This sewing club is composed of the intermediate class of the Sunday school and has demonstrated that numbers do not always count, as there are but from eight to ten or twelve of them who are able to attend regularly, yet by the proceeds of their last sale of fancy articles, candies, etc., were able to purchase new song books for the entire Sunday school and are now planning to help in furnishing the basement of the church when it is ready for occupancy. It is such earnest and willing work as this that helps to make this old world of ours a goodly place to live and the influence of these young ladies will make a lasting impression for good upon all.

The Royal Neighbors' lodge of Rushford met last evening with Mrs. Lizzie Larson at her home in Brooklyn, and a good sized crowd enjoyed the hospitality of the hostess and those who aided in entertaining. Cards was the recreation of the evening and after a delicious luncheon was served the merrymakers dispersed to their respective homes.

Neither does it pay to crow over unspilled milk.

"ZIGOMAR" DRAWS CROWD AT LYRIC

"Zigomar III," one of the biggest state right features of the year, is at the Lyric theater. This picture abounds in thrills, and is without a doubt a masterpiece of detective stories.

Zigomar is the leader of a great band of bandits that are terrorizing Europe. His spies are everywhere, and his word is absolute law. Secure in the protection of his band, he robs, kills and destroys at will, and puts the law in fear of him. Paulin Broquet, a famous detective, takes upon himself the work of capturing him, and the chase is sensational in the extreme. Zigomar in an aeroplane pursues Broquet, who is in a motor boat. The boat is destroyed by bombs dropped from the airship, but Broquet miraculously escapes. This is but one of many similar episodes with which the four reels are crowded.

It was shown last night for the first time, and will be shown for the last time tonight at the Lyric.

CHIEFS BLAME FASHIONS

WASHINGTON, June 12.—"Men aren't to be blamed if they take a 'peek' at dresses cut low at the neck, high at the ankes and narrow all around," four hundred police chiefs in convention here declared in discussing a resolution demanding a change in woman's styles and the abolishment of the turkey trot and other clinging forms of terpsichorean recreation.

Chief of Police Peterson of Oakland, Cal., declared there wasn't any normal man who wouldn't look around when he saw a woman wearing a dress chopped off at the neck and the ankles, slit at the knee and fitting like a glove."

UNDER WATER 36 HOURS

LONG BEACH, Cal., June 12.—J. M. Cage, inventor of the submarine, which broke the world's record for time spent continuously under water, today declared neither he nor any of the others who participated in the test suffered any ill effects from their stay under water. The submarine was submerged exactly thirty-six hours, having arisen from the depths at five p. m. yesterday. This breaks the previous world's record by twelve hours.

YESTERDAY'S WORK IN THE LEGISLATURE

MADISON, Wis., June 12.—For the second time at this session the assembly has defeated a bill aimed to give power to towns, villages and cities the right to grant special aid to interurbans in order to promote their development. The bill was made the subject of an attack by Assemblyman Zinn and Sharp. Zinn claimed that a powerful lobby of a proposed interurban road between waukee and Waushara county had been camping at this session of the legislature attempting to get this bill enacted into law.

The assembly passed under suspension of the rules the Battis bill providing for a reservoir system on the Wolf river. It also concurred to appoint a board of public works. The True bill to grant $50,000 special state aid for the construction of a bridge across the Wisconsin river at Merrimac; the Burke bill to appropriate $2,000 for a game farm and the propagation of wild game; the Teasdale bill increasing the total fund for state aid to high schools from $150,000 to $175,000 and the Scott bill providing a method of reinsurance were concurred in.

The assembly passed the Gulickson bill repealing the poll tax law and concurred in an amendment to the Holmes stock and bond bill providing corporations may issue securities to the amount of the actual physical value of the property as determined by the railroad commission.

A new woman's suffrage bill was introduced in the senate last night by the senate committee on judiciary to meet the objections of Governor McGovern when he vetoed the Glenn bill providing for a referendum in 1914. The new bill proposes the year 1916.

I have since recommended this remedy to other people and I have heard it praised highly by everyone who has used it. The cure I told of in my previous testimonial has been permanent. BEGINS MAIDEN TRIP

IMPERATOR SAILS ON FIRST TRANSATLAITIC VOYAGE FROM HAMBURG

HAMBURG, June 12.—The Hamburg-American liner Imperator, the biggest steamship now afloat, steamed yesterday on her maiden trans-Atlantic voyage. The leviathan was a-flutter with flags from bow to stern and a vast throng was at the pier to see her off. She carried a large quota of passengers.

The Imperator was to have made her first trip on May 24 but many things happened to cause the postponement. First the monster ship swung crosswise in the slip and broke away from an army of tugs that had her in tow. She stuck fast in the bud. A few days later there was a slight explosion and fire aboard, that injured several men. Next it was discovered that the Hoboken piers were too short to accommodate the giant and the sailing was put off.

The Imperator is due in New York about June 18 and will sail from that port on her initial eastward trip on June 25.

SIX DEATH LIST IN BARGE BLAST

Watchman in Hospital Is Stil Unconscious and Is Expected to Die

RACINE, Wis., June 12.—A thorough search of the hold of the barge E. M. Peck, wrecked by a boiler explosion yesterday shows that there are no more bodies aboard, and the death list remains at six. The body of Second Engineer Bernard Schwenson has not been reecovered. There is no doubt but that he was blown into the river when the smokestack near which he was standing was carried away. The recovered dead are:

Chief Engineer William Andrews, Fireman Adam Kriegy, Fireman Gus Gunderson, Fireman M. Zowns and Oiler Edward Young. Watchman Geo. Turche has not yet recovered consciousness and it is said at the hospital that he will die. The inquest will be held tomorrow. State and government steamship inspectors are here to probe the tragedy.

Don't Poison Baby.
FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have PAREGORIC or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and a FEW DROPS TOO MANY will produce the SLEEP FROM WHICH THERE IS NO WAKING. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labelling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician know of what it is composed. CASTORIA DOES NOT CONTAIN NARCOTICS, if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.
Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

"MUG" PAT CROWE AND SEE HIM OFF

Police Pinch Noted Evangelist-Crook for Jag Day After Release from Jail

Carefully brushing his heavy gray hair back from an aching brow—the ache being the result of his farewell party in La Crosse last night—Pat Crowe, the kidnaper, who was released from the county jail Tuesday, posed for a photograph at Pryor's studio today. Pat consented to be photographed not because of his desire to preserve his own likeness but at the urgent request of a certain influential agency. This agency was the La Crosse police department. In short, Pat was "mugged," and from now until he has ended his spectacular career his picture will hold a place among the other acquaintances of the La Crosse police.

That Crowe has not lost his pride was evinced by his careful preparation for the picture. He arranged his once prosperous suit in the best fashion possible and brushed his hair until it fairly glistened and assumed the most graceful position he knew. When the photographer pronounced him "taken" he was escorted to the north side depot and put on a train for St. Paul. He traveled first class—on money donated by his attorneys in this city.

Although released from the county jail but day before yesterday, where he had been serving a thirty day sentence for theft, Pat accumulated a heavy burden of intoxicants yesterday afternoon and evening and spent the night in the city jail sobering up. When drunk he is very abusive but this morning he was politeness itself. As soon as he was released from jail Tuesday he assumed the role of a revivalist and attempted to convert all and sundry. His wanderings, however, led him into temptation and resulted in his being requested to leave the city. He "said" that he would not reurn.

MORE INTEREST IN SAVING BIRDS

MADISON, Wis., June 12.—The school year now drawing to a close in Wisconsin has witnessed an increase by pupils in the subject of conservation of bird life, according to State Game Warden John A. Sholts. Captain Sholts inaugurated a movement for the fostering of bird protection among the school children of the state. He was greatly pleased to receive an essay on this subject written by Anna E. Burce, a thirteen year old school girl in the state graded school at Ingram. Her treatment of the theme is commented on in the highest terms by the chief warden, and it may be published in next year's arbor and bird day annual. Miss Burce gives the Audobon society credit for the report that 150,000,000 birds are killed each year for trimming hats.

WILSON TO BE AT OPENING OF CANAL

WASHINGTON, June1 2.—President Wilson told Chief Engineer Goethals of the Panama canal today that he would certainly visit the big ditch at the close of congress, and gave an indication of when he expects the session to end by adding that this would probably be in September or October. Goethals said if it were necessary he would hold back the letting of water into the canal for a couple of weeks, so that the president might be on hand to witness this final chapter in the waterway's construction.

ENGLAND'S KING AND QUEEN HAVE THEIR PICTURES TAKEN IN KAISER'S PALACE

King and Queen of England.

COMES HERE TO FIND LOST BOY

Walter Peterson of Milwaukee Sure Demented Youth in Genoa Is Missing Cousin

After reading in a Milwaukee paper a story with a La Crosse date line telling of the discovery of a youth in the woods near Genoa who had lost all memory except his name, Walter Peterson of Milwaukee today came to this city to hunt the lad, convinced that he is a missing cousin, Tinus Peterson.

Mr. Peterson applied to the local police, but they were unable to help him, having heard nothing of the case except through the papers. He will leave this evening for Genoa, where it is said the youth is in custody.

Tinus Peterson disappeared from his home in Milwaukee three weeks ago, and until the publication of the dispatch nothing had been heard of him. He was said to have been living for some time on what he could find in the woods. The Genoa authorities decided he must have escaped from some asylum.

Never put off till tomorrow what any one is willing to do for you today.

EARLY RESIDENT GOES TO REWARD

Alois Olsen, one of the oldest residents of La Crosse, died last night at his home, 615 South Ninth street, after a brief illness. Death was caused by the infirmities of old age. Mr. Olsen was born in Norway, and has been a resident of this city since a young man. His wife died July 25, 1911. He is survived by two daughters. The funeral arrangements have not been announced.

BASEBALL PLAYER TO SUE "TRUST"

Former Manager of the St. Louis Browns Will Start Trust Action Against American League

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 12.—John (Jack) O'Connor, manager of the St. Louis Federal league baseball club, and former manager of the Browns, has retained attorneys to file suit against the American league, charging that organized baseball is a combination in restraint of trade between the states, organized for the purpose of preventing competition between players for salaries and between clubs for the services of players by conspiring to control the prices paid to players for their services.

O'Connor will ask $25,000 damages for his banishment from organized baseball and for the fact that he was prevented from playing baseball during 1912.

MAYOR JANE ADDAMS?

CHICAGO WOMEN ALREADY BEGIN BOOSTING HULL HOUSE WORKER FOR 1915 ELECTION

CHICAGO, June 12.—For mayor of Chicago in 1915—Miss Jane Addams, of Hull House, on the suffragette ticket.

The sugestion came from the lips of a score of prominent women suffragette leaders in Chicago, rejoicing today over the passage of the bill late yesterday that gave the franchise to the women of Illinois. With the election nearly two years distant the development of the boom for the noted social worker for the position of executive of the second city of America cannot be forecasted, but several friends of Miss Addams believed today that she might be induced to accept the nomination. She is now abroad.

The passage of the suffrage law will double the number of voting precincts in Chicago, according to Dr. Howard S. Taylor, of the election board. The board will make its first estimates of the number of new precincts needed after the women voters register for the first time for the county primaries next April.

Mayor Carter H. Harrison declared today he was gratified over the passage of the bill.

NOT UP TO DIPLOMATS

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Seizure by Japanese authorities of the American yacht Columbia, which put into Wakayama, a closed Japanese port, is not a matter for diplomatic adjustment, Secretary of State Bryan stated today. The secretary thinks the American vessel will be released after the formal red tape attending such procedure is disposed of. "There is nothing serious about the action of the Japanese authorities," he declared. "The very same action would be taken by the United States if a foreign vessel entered one of our closed ports. I am sure that the American yacht will be released soon."

SENATE PROBERS VISIT COAL FIELD

Scene of Warfare in West Virginia Gone Over Today by the Senators

BY JOHN EDWIN NEVIN
(Staff Correspondent of the United Press.)

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 12.—The troubled section of West Virginia in which both mine workers and operators admit conditions of actual warfare have been present for months was today visited by five United States senators. The subcommittee investigating the trouble in the soft coal fields, unable to hear Governor Glasscock, who was responsible for the original declaration of martial law, decided to view the scene of bloodshed and left Charleston at 10 o'clock. The attorneys for both sides and the representatives of the press associations accompanied the committee.

Because former Governor Glasscock, who was to have been the star witness, wired the committee at the last moment that he had missed a train, today's trip was undertaken.

Into the very heart of the West Virginia coal fields the senate investigating committee penetrated today. It sought and secured first hand information regarding conditions which have already been described by witnesses as one "of actual warfare." The committee saw the slab-boarded shacks, the places the men who toil in the black recesses of the mountains call home.

The committee saw beside the roads the tents, now occupied by the evicted miners. They saw bullet riddled houses of the town shot up—the operators claim by union men and their sympathizers. They saw the company stores. The mine guard system was looked over, the entire troubled regions were visited.

The committee was shown where machine guns were mounted to command the countryside.

MISS YOUNG WEDS CYRIL A. FAY TODAY

A quiet wedding was solemnized this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's parsonage, where Dr. Robert B. Congdon united in marriage Miss Myra Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude J. Young, of 607 Market street, and Mr. Cyril A. Fay of Wardner, Idaho, formerly of La Crosse. Mr. Fay is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Fay of 1120 Main street. The bride was exquisitely gowned in white chiffon over white charmeuse elaborated with Spanish lace and pearls. The bridal veil of tulle was fashioned in a cap with loops of tulle and caught with sprays of lilies of the valley. The bridal bouquet was fashioned of lilies of the valley in an elaborate shower.

The bride and groom were unattended and only the immediate families witnessed the ceremony. A wedding breakfast was served immediately after the ceremony. The out of town guests at the wedding were Mrs. Leonora Cargen, Miss Marion Cargen of Cambridge, Wis., Mrs. O. E. Jenkins of Syracuse, N. Y., and Miss Ida May Fay of Minneapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. Fay will spend a month at the lake, after which Mr. Fay will take his bride to their future home in Wardner, Idaho.

MRS. ANNA RYDER CALLED BY DEATH

Mrs. Anna Ryder, died at the poor farm yesterday afternoon at the age of 54 years. She had been confined for several years with rheumatism, which caused her death. Mrs. Ryder was born in Norway, coming to this country while a child, and settling in Onalaska. Her husband died several years ago. She is survived by three daughters and two sons. The funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock from the funeral parlors of Fessler and Dahl. Interment will be made in Oak Grove cemetery.

BULGARS ACCEPT DUSSIAN OFFER

VIENNA, June 12.—Bulgaria has unqualifiedly accepted the offer of Russia to arbitrate the Bulgarian-Servian dispute, according to information received here today. The czar telegraphed Czar Ferdinand of Bulgaria, asking him to consent to arbitration. It is said that Servia already had agreed to Russian arbitration.

With the Bulgaria-Roumanian and Bulgaria-Servian boundary disputes settled, the disagreement between Greece and Bulgaria concerning Salonika will be the only obstacle to the conclusion of peace in the Balkans.

SERVICES AT CEMETERY

The funeral services for Edward Cutting, son of Conductor W. A. Cutting of the Dubuque division of the Milwaukee road, were held this morning in Oak Grove cemetery. Rev. J. E. Watson officiated. The pall bearers were: Allen Bock, Frank Allard, Allen Shaw, Charles Kurlow, W. W. Graham and P. S. Hardau, all of Dubuque. A large number of friends both from this city and Dubuque attended the funeral.

GOMEZ' NEPHEW SUICIDE

HAVANA, June 12.—Ramon Garcia Ozo, a nephew of former President Gomez and director of the Cuban agricultural experiment station, committed suicide. The government immediately ordered an investigation of the affairs of the station. Ozo held a similar position under the Mexican government until his uncle became president of Cuba, when he came here.

ASK LA CROSSE IN NORTHERN LEAGUE

Probable that City Will Be Invited to Take Up the Franchise Dropped by St. Paul

A movement is on foot among club owners in the Northern league to have La Crosse take up the St. Paul club's franchise, which has been dropped by H. P. Conrad. Winona officials especially are said to favor inviting La Crosse to join the league. Winona dispatches this morning said that the matter would be put up to John A. Elliott of this city to get it started.

Mr. Elliott said today that he had heard nothing but what had been in the papers, and that he was not strongly in favor of the step. He said, however, that if the Northern league should invite La Crosse to take the franchise, he would call a meeting of local fans to put the proposition before them.

He declared that it was rather late in the season to put a team in the field, and said in his judgment it would be better to wait until next year.

"The city league is putting up a fine article of ball," Mr. Elliott said, "and they are improving right along. I feel that we can get along with the local boys this year without getting a league franchise."

HITCH IN DISSOLUTION

COURT AND U. P. ATTORNEYS DIFFER ON METHOD—MAY TRADE STOCK WITH PENNSYLVANIA

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 12.—A hitch in the plans of counsel for the Union Pacific railroad for the disposal of Southern Pacific stock held by Union Pacific shareholders occurred in the dissolution hearing before Judge Sanborn, W. C. Hook and W. I. Smith, United States circuit court this morning.

S. H. Loomis for the Union Pacific suggested that the Union Pacific stockholders be allowed to fix a minimum price at which they should dispose of Southern Pacific stock with the avowed object of creating a demand for the stock by the margin between the market price and the minimum price fixed.

Judge W. I. Smith objected on the ground that it would enable the Union Pacific stockholders to fix a prohibitive price and thus enable them to retain control in the Southern Pacific road.

When the first plan providing for the sale by public subscription of Southern Pacific stock held by Union Pacific shareholders was taken up the Union Pacific attorneys broached a plan to have the stock exchanged for stock in the Pennsylvania system, the Pennsylvania road being the only road that has offered to exchange the stock.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 12.—It is reported here that the Pennsylvania railroad may offer to trade Baltimore & Ohio and Norfolk & Western stock for Southern Pacific when the Union Pacific disposes of the Southern Pacific in accordance with the supreme court ruling. It is pointed out that the Pennsylvania interest in lines which act as competitors may lay the road open to prosecution and that such a trade would relieve both the Pennsylvania and the Union Pacific from prosecution and give each connecting links in a coast to coast line.

MASONS ADJOURN STATE CONVENTION

MILWAUKEE, June 12.—Following the installation of officers at 9 a. m. today the annual convocation of the grand lodge of Wisconsin F. & A. M. adjourned until next year. This year's convocation was the most most successful in the history of masonry in Wisconsin, delegates said.

At the session late yesterday afternoon the following officers were elected: Grand Master, G. B. Wheeler, Eau Claire; deputy, B. F. Keeler, La Crosse; grand senior warden, G. O. Kellogg, Elkhorn; grand junior warden, W. S. Griswold, Waukesha; grand treasurer, B. G. Green, Neshota; grand secretary, W. W. Perry, Milwaukee; grand trustee, H. W. Sawyer, Hartford.

ALIMONY AWAITS SUIT SETTLEMENT

Kate Doyle was today granted a divorce from David Doyle on the grounds of cruelty and abandonment by Judge Higbee. The matter of alimony was left open pending the decision of a $12,000 damage suit Doyle has against the La Crosse Street Railway company, which is now in the supreme court. Doyle was awarded $12,000 by the circuit court, and the company appealed the case. The damage suit arose over an injury to Doyle while working for the company.

KEOKUK DAM OPENS FOR BOATS TODAY

KEOKUK, Iowa, June 12.—With appropriate ceremonies, the huge new dam across the Mississippi river here was opened for navigation this morning. The first boat to pass through the locks was the steamer Sidney of the Streckfus line. The big power dam is now complete and supplying electricity to St. Louis and other intermediate points.

know how to handle his power or his car.'

"This superintendent is also one of the best men in his line in the country, and it would appear to us that these statements should forever stop the company from now claiming that experience is not necessary.

"A motorman is dealing with a dangerous and powerful agency along streets that at times are congested with vehicles and people on foot.

"A railroad man desiring to become an engineer is compelled to spend years beside the engineer as a fireman before he is allowed to touch the throttle. His path when he takes an engine is kept clear by gates and other contrivances to keep people off the tracks. And the steam roads are forced by law and by competition to equip these lines with the latest safety devices.

No Air Brakes

"Not so with the street car lines operating in this city. Some of the cars used are as old as the line itself. Every car has hand brakes, some very ancient in design, and in all cases taking some time to stop a car in case of urgent necessity. Not even the larger double truck cars are equipped with air brakes, although used to cross steam road tracks approached by a down grade.

"Air brake equipment might cost the company some money to install. The passage of this ordinance would cost it nothing, and it is drawn to save lives and limbs. Why the company should not wish it to pass is inconceivable. We are sure that the local general manager thinks as we do. But of course he is acting for out of town capitalists and presented their views to the committee. What effect this ordinance will have on other lines owned by this corporation outside of this city should not be considered by this council.

"Those who were officials when the road was owned by home capital testified that experience should be exacted before a man should be put in charge of a car. Does the change in ownership to outside capitalists change the situation?

"It appears to us that the only explanation of the position the present company takes is that their attitude from this time on is to be that of opposition to all requests for improvements of the service. This being the first ordinance looking in that direction, the company probably thinks this the time to begin such opposition.

"It is the lives and limbs of the citizens of La Crosse and those dear to us that are jeopardized and not the lives and limbs of the present stockholders.

"At that we believe the present stockholders if put under oath would state as did the La Crosse men when they owned the road, that experience is very necessary. That first the motorman should know his car, and there are several types on the road, ancient and modern. He should know the action of the different styles of motors, the different styles of brakes and should also know the tracks, especially the deadly steam road crossings at Mill street. In short, a motorman cannot have too much knowledge of the deadly agency he is to propel along the streets of the city, together with an intimate knowledge of his tracks and traffic conditions. Even with the oldest and best men accidents will happen.

Rule Provides Arbitration

"The committee action was taken in executive session and if we are rightly informed the only objection made by the company was that in case of a strike, they could not operate cars if the ordinance passes.

"This argument is untenable because of the fact that under union rules all matters of difference between the men and the company, should any arise, must be arbitrated and the company, if it desires, can always compel the old men to operate their cars until the matters in dispute are settled.

"We feel sure that if you give this matter due consideration, taking into your calculations the rights of the public, as well as those of the company, that you will agree with us that the ordinance should pass.

"Respectfully submitted,
"TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL of the City of La Crosse.
"By the Executive Committee.
"Dated, June 11, 1913."

Contradictory Terms.

An American visitor to Cambridge sought explanation of some unfamiliar terms, which a genial Don was delighted to elucidate. "'Full term,'" he explained, "is three-quarters of a term, and the 'May week' is the first fortnight in June. A day of general admission is the day on which men leave the university, an ordinary degree is one conferred by a special examination, and an inspector of arts is one who has been an arts student for at least six years."

The Yankee passed a hand across his weary brow. "And will they," he queried, "put me in the London train if I ask for a ticket to Cambridge?"—London Globe.

Foreign Markets

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, June 12.—The stock market opened active and strong.

11 a. m.—A surprising resiliency in Steel was the feature of the first hour's trading. There seemed to be an accumulation of the stock in the hands of strong interests which bought largely while the issue was under fire during the last few minutes of yesterday's market.

The volume of transactions in other issues was also unusually heavy and bulls had things their own way. The supply of stocks did not seem large enough to meet the demands of those who had short contracts to fill and the belief prevailed that the time had come to go over to the long side.

Noon—The market was reactionary following a bear raid.

2 p. m.—The advance in the market continued in the early afternoon All of the news was favorable to the bull side and the bears were not given a chance to stop in their rush to cover. The Harriman issues were the leaders in the bull movement. The submission of the supplemental plan for the dissolution of the Union and Southern Pacific merger was received favorably on the exchange.

The stock market closed fairly strong.

Chicago Grain Review

CHICAGO, June 12—Reports from the northwest were closely watched by the wheat trade today and the information that dry weather threatened some damage to the crop gave the market a bullish tone. Consequently prices were firm at the outset and September had a ¼c advance, July holding firm throughout the morning.

The corn trade heard complaints that the crop is getting a poor start and responded with a firm opening and advances of ⅜c to ½c during the morning. Absence of selling orders was another bull feature.

With the exception of the northwest where rain is needed, conditions are good for the oats crop. However, offerings today were very light and in sympathy with other grains, oats moved up ⅜c after starting firm.

Provisions had a steady undertone because of a higher hog market.

A rush of buying in the afternoon caused a bulge that sent wheat options up ½ to ⅝c.

Corn advanced slightly and oats swung upward with wheat. The turn of the market in the afternoon caused the entire cereal list to close strong and at top notch figures for the day.

Pork had a slightly firmer tone in the afternoon and with the other provisions closed firm.

NAP-SOX FEUD IS OPENED AGAIN

BOSTON, June 12.—The feud between the Naps and the Red Sox, engendered by their battle royal in Cleveland recently, has broken out again, according to the charges of Nap players, following their 15 inning battle in Boston yesterday. Chapman and Olson claim they were deliberately spiked in yesterday's game. Larry Lajoie, hit by one of Joe Wood's smoke balls, alleges it was done purposely. The players make no pretense of friendly relations and in anticipation of hostile moves several Naps wore shin guards during all three games in Boston.

G. A. R. VETERANS FINED FOR SPEED

MILWAUKEE, June 12.—Veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic may be getting old, but they are not so slow.

Four of them, well known residents of Milwaukee, all past commanders of the department of Wisconsin G. A. R., together with their chauffeur were arrested in Oshkosh at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon charged with exceeding the speed limit of eighteen miles an hour. The chauffeur was fined $10.

The G. A. R. men in the party were F. A. Walsh, J. P. Rundle, Wade H. Richardson and C. A. Bentley.

Watching The Scoreboard

There are but two places known where two men can steal home in one inning. They are Boston and Rossiter, Pa. Olson and Graney both stole home in the 15th inning of the Nap-Red Sox tussle.

It remained for the St. Louis Browns to break the winning streak. Catcher Agnew did it with a home run in the ninth, sending in two men ahead of him.

The Tigers hit the Washington pitchers safely 14 times for 25 bases. Crawford and Cobb registered home runs. The bases were full when Crawford connected.

The Giants evidently have trained for the extra distance when they have been forced to travel in three games with the Cubs and nosed out a victory in the tenth frame yesterday. Fromme held the Cubs to five hits.

After being turned down when they tried to borrow a catcher because all of their men were injured, the Pirates whaled the life out of Brooklyn. They made 17 hits good for 17 bases.

Tinker had the satisfaction of driving out a double that helped considerable toward downing the Phillies before he and Knabe mixed at second. A young riot was quelled by the umpires and the Reds won the game.

WEAKEN BAKER LAW

MADISON, Wis., June 12. — The Baker law regulating the licensing of saloons was practically emasculated by the senate last night. By the passage of an amended substitute to the Ackley bill, the senate struck out of the Baker law a provision requiring the continued location of a saloon in a designated place, and permitting the same number of licenses and the location at any place the licensing authority may grant.

PROMOTES DESPAIR

CHICAGO, June 12.—Several out of town fight promoters and race track followers sought joint consolation where they serve them tall and high today, when they learned that the Illinois legislature killed the Briscoe bill late last night. A general exodus of outsiders began today. Fight promoters who took options on all the available halls in Chicago and then watched the legislature kill the boxing commission bill, declared today that the killing of Luther McCarty was the death blow to the measure.

BLOODHOUNDS FAIL TO TRACK TOBEN

SAULT STE MARIE, Mich., June 12.—Bloodhounds which Chippewa county officers procured from Petoskey, Mich., and which have been put on the trail of John Toben, wanted for the murder of two deputy sheriffs at a lumber camp near Wellsburg last Friday, have been no more effective than deputy sheriffs, farmers and United States revenue cutter officers, and the Russian lumberjack is still at large. Reports from Eckerman, thirty-six miles from this city, state that Toben was seen Wednesday night at Stecons Siding. Two shots were fired at him, but he escaped through the darkness into the deep woods.

TO PUT BUILDING ON FAMOUS POND

STILLWATER, Minn., June 12.—Stillwater's famous Main street trout pond is no more. The abandoned building basement near where once stood the old Gazette building and which some time ago was turned into a hatchery by local anglers, has given way to progress. A fine, large paper box factory is to be built on the scene.

EDITOR SCOTT IS SENT TO PRISON

Alexander Scott, editor of the Weekly Issue, the paper which defended the strikers in the silk mills of Paterson, N. J., the home of American anarchists, was given an indeterminate sentence of from one to fifteen years for publishing an editorial which contained this paragraph:

"Paterson was once famous as the city of the Reds, the home of anarchists. The anarchists talked a whole lot and made some noise, but they naver harmed a hair on any one's head. Now Paterson has become infamous as the city of the blues, the hotbed of brass buttoned anarchists. These police anarchists, headed by the boss anarchist Bimson, not only believe in lawlessness, but they practice it. They don't waste words with workingmen—they simply crack their heads."

BOILS BREAK OUT IN BADGER CREW

Clayton Has Big One on His Back but Will Not Quit the Shell

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 12.—The Cornell varsity eight was the only Ithaca boat which did not show changes today, when the Cornell crews took to the water for the practice spins. In the four-oared shell Hiscox was taken from stroke and placed at No. 2. Byrd was placed as stroke. The freshmen crew also was considerably shaken up.

Washington university crew was not pressed as hard today as it was by Coach Conibear. The varsity will be sent for a row of twelve miles in the late afternoon and all of the men appeared in good condition. Garvin, No. 5, in the Pennsylvania was still out today. He had a high fever yesterday but was somewhat improved today. He will not be able to resume practice, however, before tomorrow or Saturday.

Boils are causing trouble in the Wisconsin camp. Clayton has a big one on his back, but will not retire from the shell unless his condition becomes more serious.

MICHIGAN MEN TO START

CHICAGO, June 12. — Several Michigan university stars will be entrants in the international athletic carnival next month in Grant Park, it was announced today. Coach Farrell of the Ann Arbor squad wrote officials of the meet that he expects his men to carry off honors in the intercollegiate section.

YALE STROKE HURT

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 12.—Gore, stroke of Yale's varsity eight will probably be out of the shell during practice spins of the next few days so that two fingers lanced yesterday have every chance to heal before the Yale-Harvard race. Slivers ploughed the flesh and inflammation set in.
